

How To Stay Focussed

<http://tinyurl.com/m92usq>

STAYING FOCUSED LEADS TO SUCCESSFUL ACHIEVEMENT OF THE PREDEFINED GOAL!

You have full Giveaway rights for this ebook

You may give it away as a bonus for your promotions, add it to your membership site or make it available as a Free download from your website. You may not resell it or offer it through other means such as auctions, online stores or the like. You cannot change, edit or remove any information or content in whatsoever manner. You may attach your label at the bottom of this document only without disturbing any of the contents, headings, footers or my identifications!

Disclaimer / Legal Notices

The information presented herein represents the views of the author as of date of publication. Because of the rate change in the internet and the rising of new circumstances, the author reserves the rights to update and alter the opinions to suit the new condition(s).

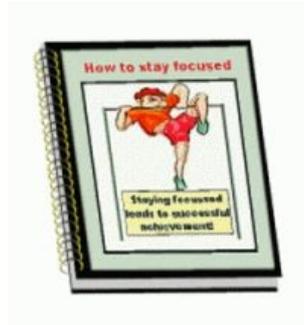

The report is for informational purposes only and the author does not accept and responsibilities from any liabilities resulting in the use of the information. While every attempt was made to ensure that the information is accurate, the author and/or his associates cannot be held responsible for any errors, omissions or inaccuracies.

Results may vary from person to person and is very much dependent on attitude or perception and the amount of work one puts in. The author and/or his associates do not make any guarantees implied or otherwise that a good or perfect result is assured.

Copyright© 2009 All rights reserved. No part of this report may be reproduced or transmitted in any form whatsoever, electronic, or mechanical, including photocopying, recording, or by any informational storage or retrieval system without the explicit permission by the author on the terms and conditions prescribed by the author.

How To Stay Focussed

<http://tinyurl.com/m92usq>

Staying focussed leads to successful achievement of the predefined goal!

To be focussed is a two-dimensional concept. You are either focussed out of free will or you are focussed on something you are forced to do! But both dimensions have the same purpose, namely to reach a certain goal!

Success = The goal had been reached (finishing to satisfaction, winning something, or gaining the desire profit).

The "goal" can be the final aim or the attainment of each small step that was completed in a chain of predefined goals aimed at reaching the final big goal! To walk from point A to point B is a good example. (Although the reality is more complicated this example illustrates the principle in very simple terms.) Every step that you walk is the completion of one small goal to reach the big goal point B. If you stop in between, the final goal will not have been reached yet.

So to get to the final goal or to success there must be movement from beginning to end. The time it takes to reach the goal or success, depends on how fast you complete each step satisfactorily!

The satisfaction part depends on what you decided in the beginning it should be. You can decide to do an outstanding job or an ordinary good job or just an everyday thing. I would suggest that you choose the first one for doing online business as your success will mostly depend on what others think of your product and presentation!

To be successful you must start and work only on those things that has the ability to reach a predefined goal. And, to be focussed, one should be directly or indirectly actively engaged in the process to reach the goal, after clearly accepted that the outcome will bring about something worthwhile to you and will be acceptable for your target market or audience! Let me tell you something of my own struggle early in life.

The problem of staying focussed exactly pictures my own experience in life. What I did when I was a youngster early in my career to overcome the lack of will to start doing my work, was to realise that I should do something about the problem.

I decided to start doing something and took the first file in front of me and start reading through it page by page to see how I could get interested in what I am doing in order to finish the job successfully! I forced myself from that day on to make believe that the job at hand is interesting and worth the while! That also triggered something else - how to concentrate on what I am doing at the moment and cut myself off from everything else until I finished the job or could take a reasonable brake before going on! It also made me proud of the fact that I achieved something!

What I want to imprint on you with the above paragraph is that you will have to challenge yourself to start and finish a commitment before you loose interest in it. To motivate yourself for this challenge, you have to get involved in the task and regulate your speed in order to be in control all the time!

The best way of speed regulation is to divide the task into smaller workable sequential and interrelated steps. This allows you to observe the results as you go on and keep you motivated to finish! A good example of such control is the "flow chart" in business and construction works. The entire project is projected over a specific period of time and divided into smaller parts, each following the other. The first step must be completed before the next step. To stay focussed thus requires good planning over the long term and short term.

Look, I am not talking here about letting others do the job for you! In that case my success principles also apply to each of them personally. It doesnt matter where in the success chain you are. If you want to be successful there, these principles apply irrespective who you are or what you are doing!

So before you start, make it clear to yourself why you are doing something and what the outcome should be. Is the outcome worth all the effort and sweat? If not, it is best to abandon it without any regret in favour of something else more satisfying or profitable.

Decide at the start what you want to do and I may add make sure that you really want it or want to do it. It should be important to you in such an extent that the outcome is worth the time, effort and money spent.

The importance of what the result(s) will be must be such that it creates enough drive to go on and motivates you to the end! If you are forced to do something then do what worked for me - force yourself to see reason why you must do it, get interested and look positively at the benefits to yourself as well as what you can learn from the process. If there is no gain, why do it if your life or reputation is not at stake!

Here is the crux of staying focussed! The strenght of your focuss is equal to the strenght of your drive to achieve success!. The strenght of your drive depends on how important a successful outcome will be to you!

The conclusion is that your goalsetting at the beginning must include a statement to what the importance of the outcome is. Thus it all depends on prioritising based on the importance of the amount of success that is required, weighed against the importance of all your other goals!

"How The Success Process Works in Practice"

Find out exactly how to apply the practical success processes in your internet enterprise, project or venture to ensure and accelerate its total achievement!

- Internet Business, Marketing, Promotions and advertising
- Also for Personal Ventures

<http://tinyurl.com/m92usq>

Here are some interesting stuff for extra spice

Please note: the links did work at the time this document was published the first time Q&A Issue #9 009/01/24 10:15 PM

<http://www.michaelrasmussen.com/questions/>

<http://www.goalsettingstudio.com/>

<http://www.StevePavlina.com/> His Personal Development Insights™ Newsletter, Issue #11 - December 22, 2008: "How to Achieve Your New Year's Goals"

And finally these specific articles (I am just quoting the headings and authors. If you want to have a look at it):

"The One and Only Cause of Failure in Any Area of Your Life... and the One and Only Solution", By David Cameron, Author of "A Happy Pocket Full of Money"). I found it some time ago on <http://www.mindpowernews.com/> and it should still be in their archive!

"How to Focus your mind on the project", written for "Dumb Little Man" by K. Stone, author of "Life Learning Today", a blog about daily life improvements.

If you want guidance on a more specific topic about focussing (or any other question relating to practical issues of success), then you are welcome to ask Here!

I wish you a renewed focussing effort for the future!

Piet Venter

Follow me at Twitter

I'm Blogging Here!

My Facebook Profile

